

The Daily Courant.

Friday, April 7. 1704.

London, April 7.

In the Courant of the 22d. of November last was inserted a Letter written by Captain Quick from on board a Ship commanded by him call'd the Concord Galley, in which he gives the following Account of the Engagement he had with a French Privateer that took the Prince George Galley commanded by Captain Helot.

I Put to Sea in Company of the Prince George Galley, a Ship of 18 Guns, 6 Pattreroes and 40 Men; the Captain of which and I at our going out mutually promis'd each other to sink together rather than lose our Ships. In the Latitude of 48 Deg. 30 Min. about 75 Leagues S. W. by S. from the Cape on Friday the 5th instant about 6 a Clock in the Morning, I saw a Sail to the Windward of us, I bore down and told my Fellow Captain that I saw a Sail, that I believ'd her to be a Privateer, and therefore desir'd him to provide for her Reception; and I got my Ship ready supposing my Companion had done the like. About 10 a Clock the Privateer bore down upon us, and the Prince George imprudently let him come under her Stern, the Enemy fir'd in a Broadside and a Volley of small Shot: (The Privateer had 28 Guns, so many we told, and could not have less than 108 Men;) Seeing this, I immediately bore down upon him and gave him a Broadside and a Volley of small Shot, and then kept plying him as fast as I could. The Captain of the Prince George fired 2 or 3 Cannon and some few Musquets, and then struck his Ensign; which I could not believe at first, but suppos'd his Halliers had been cut with a small Shot, so I call'd to him bidding him bear up and we would fight the Enemy before the Wind, and told him if he would stand by me it would be easie for us to drive the Privateer. But at last I saw his Boat hoisting out, and the Enemy forbore firing. When I had seen this, I made what Sail I could to get away, but the Enemy being light and clean came up with me about 4 in the Afternoon, when I hawl'd down the Bulkhead and brought two Guns aft for a stern Chace, and ply'd him with them, till he came up a Broad side with me, and then we desperately engag'd with all our Force within Pistol Shot of each other; he boarded me three times, twice on the Quarter and once on the Bow, but still we put him off; the last boarding he carried away our Head and Boltsplit, and as far as we could judge he was founder'd.

Three of the Seamen who were taken in Captain Helot's Ship, being lately come from France, made the following Affidavit the 22d of last Month, which (at the Request of Captain Helot's Friends) is printed from the Original.

DANIEL Snow Carpenter, Peter Ed-brook Cook, and John Wilson late belonging to the Prince George Galley, Captain John Helot late Commander; make Oath that they sailed out of the Harbour of Kingsale in Ireland, on or about the first day of November last, in Company with the Concord Galley, Captain John Quick Commander, both bound for Lisbon in the Kingdom of Portugal, and that on the fifth Day of the said Month, in the morning about seventy five Leagues from the Cape, they saw a Sail bearing down upon them with English Colours, and as she came up with the said Prince George and Concord Gallys, she flung out her white Colours and proved to be an Enemy, and coming near the said Prince George Gally fir'd her Broadside of great and small Shot, and so plied her. And these Deponents further make Oath, that the said Captain John Helot receiv'd the Enemy like a brave Man, and fired briskly at him both great and small Shot for above an Hour, when he, the said Captain Helot was wounded through the Shoulder and Side with a Cannon-ball whereof he afterwards died, and that after the said Captain being so mortally wounded, disabled, and carried as dead into his Cabbin, the Ships Company of the said Prince George Gally defended her for above half an Hour longer, and then struck their Ensign to the Enemy when they could resist no longer.
And these Deponents further make Oath, that as soon as the Prince George Gally engaged the Enemy, Captain John Quick Commander of the Concord Gally, bore down to leeward of the Prince George, and did not fire one Gun upon the Enemy, but set and made all the Sail he could and ran away basely and betray'd his Honour and mutual Promise of the said two Commanders, made each to the other in the hearing of the Deponent Daniel Snow, to stand by one another to the last in case of an Engagement: And the said

Peter

Peter Edbrook for himself further maketh Oath, that he being carried on board the said Privateer after the Prince George was taken, the said Privateer gave chase and came up with the Concord Gally about four a Clock in the Afternoon, engaged her for some short time, and never boarded her, but by reason of bad Weather, or otherwise was boarded by the Concord Gally, but without any los of Masts or Men to his Knowledge, and so parted. And these Deponents further make Oath, that they have often heard the Captain Officers and Men of the said Privateer declare, that had the other Ship, meaning Captain Quick Commander of the Concord Gally, defended her self as the Prince George did, and fought at the same time, the said Privateer was resolved to leave them after the first Broad-side, which they attempted at first only to know how the said Gallys were disposed; but seeing the Baseness of the said Captain Quick, were encouraged to fight the said Prince George Gally and take her as they did.
